Digital paintings - Sketches

College pieces - Originals

Welcome to my portfolio!

As a recent art school graduate, I have had the chance to try new things and refine my drawing techniques. Throughout the school year, I have experimented with different approaches--some of which really stuck with me. I love drawing all things cute and aesthetically pleasing, with high levels of detail. In this portfolio, you'll get to view some digital paintings, sketches, and class assignments, as well as my own original stuff! Expect to see some character design work, world building, and other interesting pieces! Most of my work consists of fanart, but this portfolio contains only original work.

Sit back, relax, grab a snack, and enjoy!

Elwyn Moon

Elwyn is a witchy character that started out as a simple inktober project years ago. During my time at Algonquin, I decided to revive her and give her a story. Here is some concept art of her and her home.

Elwyn is very passionate about botanical magic. She also has an adorable hobbit-style home in the forest.

Home Concepts & Character Sketches

This is Elewyn's bedroom. I was inspired by the "Boho/Wicca" Aesthetic, with a touch of whimsy.

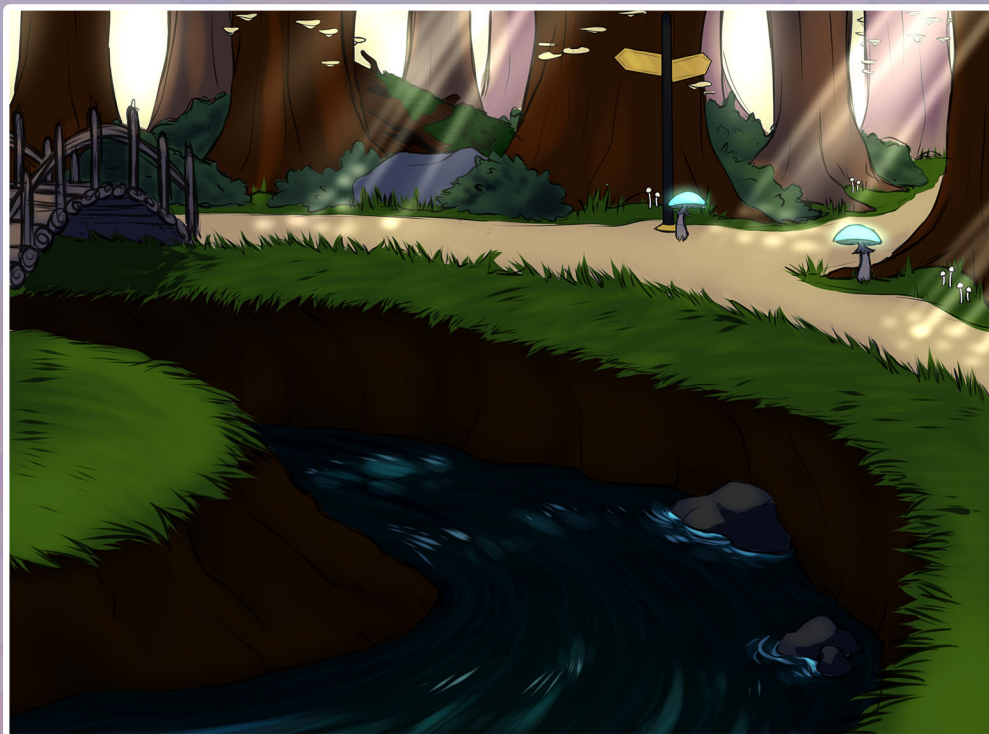

Elewyn likes to visit the human world from time to time, so this is her looking through a shop window.

This is "The Gate" (I know, what an original name). Etewyn and any other witch has the ability to cross through this gate and enter the human world. Outside of the witch world, this gate just looks like an ancient ruin.

This is a section of the forest that intersects with another path. In this piece, you can see some glowing mushrooms, a stream, and a bridge. I really like the whole "Quaint woodsy" theme.

Gordon Meowsy - The Board Game

Gordon Meowsy is a board game inspired by two things that I love: Gordon Ramsey's show and cats.

The premise of the game is that you play as a master chef-cat that goes through obstacles in the kitchen to reach the finish line, which ultimately makes them the best cat chef.

For this board game, I also came up with some playing card examples, as well as illustrated characters.

Charlie & Muv

The Children's Book Assignment + Concept Art

This assignment was a collaboration piece between the writing students and the illustration students.

I chose to illustrate the story of Charlie and Muv; two playful kittens that try to decide what game to play while their owner is away.

Creature Design

Anatomy, Skeleton, Muscles

Say hello to the North American Smik!
This little guy is an omnivore and loves to eat berries and beetles.

The Smik was primarily based off of an arctic fox in terms of body structure and mixed with a dash of wolverine likeness. I threw in some antlers and spikes, as well as a leaf for some cuteness.

Cast & Texture Studies

I always found it very relaxing to just sit down and do some studies. Something about analyzing textures and different parts of the anatomy is very stress relieving to me. Perhaps that's because I just get lost in them.

I could spend hours doing these!

Graphic Novel

Fully coloured

Cold Water Is a 4 page, fully coloured graphic novel that I created based off of a nursery rhyme called "The Wolf and the Seven Young Goats".

Cold Water is a story about a single mother that tries to protect her children from her abusive ex-husband. After being in jail for 4 years, he is finally released and has a powerful grudge against his wife.

To get revenge on her, he tries to disguise himself on 3 seperate occasions to kidnap her children.

Commission Works

During school, I had no time for a job. So, being the freelance illustrator that I am, I started taking commissions at the beginning of my school year to make some cash.

I thoroughly enjoy taking commissions because I'm getting paid to do what I love while also bringing other peoples' ideas to life.

Here are a few of my favourite pieces!
